CHOSN CHAIRMAN OF NATIONAL BODY WORK PROGRESSES ON TWO HIGHWAYS

T. S. Blish Named to Head Executive Committee of Millers' Export Association.

IMPORTANT ORGANIZATION TO OPERATE MIXER NEXT WEEK

Effected Under Webb Act to Handle Shipments of Flour and Wheat to Foreign Countries.

T. S. Blish, of the Blish Milling Company, will go to Chicago Monday to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Millers' Export Association of which he has just been elected chairman. He was chosen as one of the five members of the committee at a meeting in July and his selection as the chairman is a distinct honor and comes as a recognition of his experience and ability in handling export business.

The Millers' Export Association is a new organization which was effected under the Webb-Pomerene act, for the purpose of dealing in export shipments so that American flour consumers will be protected against high prices which would inevitably come if domestic and foreign agents went on the market in open competition. The association is composed of representatives of the largest flour mills in the United States. The business of the association is entirely new and heavy responsibilities will fall upon the executive committee.

It is explained that at the present time practically every foreign government has a flour and wheat agency which operates similar to that of the United States food administration. The demand for flour and wheat in practically all foreign countries is

MAY FIND IT HARD TO GET TEACHERS

Some Township Trustees Having Difficulty Finding Instructors for the Rural Schools.

ALL EXPENSES MUCH HIGHER

Practically All Teachers For Seymour Schools Have Been Selected—Many Applicants.

One of the problems that is facing some of the township trustees is the scarcity of school teachers. Several reasons are advanced by the officials for this condition but the high prices being paid by factories for good clerical help is perhaps the one most likely given by teachers for abandoning their profession.

It is reported that some of the trustees who thought they had their force of teachers for the coming term are being troubled with resignations as some of the instructors who had agreed to take a school have decided that it would be more profitable for them to follow some other line of work. However, it is stated that numerous applications are being filed with the different school boards and trustees which it is believed will overthrow the resignations and by the opening of school there will be enough teachers to fill all the vacancies in the county.

Claude Carter, a member of the Seymour board of education stated today that practically all of the teachers for the city schools had been selected with a few exceptions where it is necessary that an instructor have special qualifications other than that of the average school teacher. He stated that the board had more applications from teachers than there were vacancies to fill.

Since the war there has been a shortage of male teachers everywhere because of the high prices paid for labor. Women, too, have been

WORK PROGRESSES ON TWO HIGHWAYS

Part of the Excavating and Grading Completed on High Street and Walnut Street Roads.

IMPORTANT ORGANIZATION TO OPERATE MIXER NEXT WEEK

Contractors Making Arrangements to Begin Concrete Work—Highways are Blocked.

With two roads closed during the course of their permanent improvement and a third in a bad condition, farmers living south and east of the city are facing overland transportation problems. The South Walnut street road is closed from the city limits to the White school house, two miles south, and the High street road is also closed while the concrete roadway is being constructed. The closing of the White school house road throws additional travel over the Stahl road which was graded but not improved. After the rain this week the Stahl road was very muddy and automobiles and heavily loaded wagons had difficulty in plowing through the deep mire.

The progress on the two permanent road improvements out of the city is steady. The Davis Construction Company, of Arcadia, which has the contract for the improvement of the Walnut street road, has completed the laying of the water pipe which will carry the water supply to the concrete mixer and other preliminary work is out of the way. The big tractor with which the excavating and grading is being done has been in operation for several days. The road has been graded from the school house north a considerable distance and the concrete mixer will begin operation sometime next week.

The Davis Company is pushing the work on this road as it was also awarded the contract for the improvement of the Seymour-Jonesville road by the state highway commission. That contract provides for the improvement of six and a half miles of concrete road to be eighteen feet wide. The company is anxious to get started on this work as soon as possible, and expected to have about a mile and a half of the concrete work completed before winter weather sets in. The balance of the Jonesville road will be completed during the early spring.

SEYMORE MAN INSPECTS NEBRASKA WHEAT FIELDS

G. H. Anderson Writes that Yield is From 30 to 50 Bushels and Quality is Good.

That the wheat crop in Nebraska is of good quality, is the information that comes to this paper from G. H. Anderson, local grain dealer, who with Mrs. Anderson is visiting in that state. "The yield is from thirty to fifty bushels in this county," Mr. Anderson writes. "The quality is good. This county is very large and it will have about 13,000,000 bushels, according to the estimate."

Mr. Anderson writes that he is having a delightful trip and that the weather is favorable. The nights are cool, he states, and that while rains are not usual, several good showers have fallen since he has been there.

"We are delighted in receiving The Republican. It keeps us posted in the affairs in Seymour as well as if we were at home," he writes in asking that his address be changed to Cozard, Neb., where he will visit before returning here.

ROTARIANS ENJOY TRIP TO FRANKLIN

Members of Seymour Club, Wives and Friends Are Guests at Banquet and Entertainment.

ADDRESS BY ROSCOE G. STOTT

L. C. Griffitts, President of Seymour Rotarians, Responds to Remarks of Welcome.

One of the most delightful social events that has been enjoyed by the Seymour Rotary Club since its organization last spring took place Friday night when the members, their wives and friends were the guests of the Franklin Rotarians at a banquet and entertainment. The meeting was held at the Christian church and an unique program followed the luncheon. The local Rotarians motored to Franklin late in the afternoon, returning here at night. Thirty-five enjoyed the hospitality of the Franklin club.

As the banqueters were entering the dining room each was presented with a paper cap and an abundant supply of pistols, whistles and other noise making devices were distributed. An elegant course luncheon was served.

Eugene Pulliam, president of the Franklin Rotary Club, was toastmaster and immediately following his remarks of welcome, L. C. Griffitts, president of the local Rotarians, acknowledged the hospitality extended and spoke of the value that is derived from the Rotary activities.

A musical program was a feature of the evening and was presented by

MILWAUKEE BREWERS JUBILANT OVER DECISION

Court Holds That 2.75 Percent Beer is Not Intoxicating—Defendants Dismissed.

By United Press

Milwaukee, August 23—Milwaukee brewers were jubilant today over the decision of Federal Judge Sanborn at Madison yesterday in dismissing the case of six Glidden saloonkeepers after the prosecution had failed to show that 2.75 per cent beer was intoxicating. The brewers have been manufacturing 2.5 beer in considerable quantity but feared that possibly a test case might knock out the Mullenberg law permitting beer of that alcohol content. Opinions were expressed today that if a prosecutor could not produce evidence of intoxication by 2.75 per cent beer then 2.5 per cent was certainly safe.

Machinists Meet.

The president of the Washington, Indiana, Federation of Shopcraft addressed a meeting of local boilermakers and machinists at the city building Friday evening. The meeting was well attended by local union members. The strike situation was thoroughly discussed.

SHOPMEN EXPECT TO REPORT TREATY AN EARLY ANSWER WITHIN TEN DAYS

Leaders of 500,000 Union Members Believe Hines Will Decide Wage Issue Next Week.

STRIKE THREAT IS RENEWED COMMITTEE SPEEDS UP WORK

Increase in Scale of Pay Will Mean Another Substantial Advance in Freight Rates.

By United Press

Washington, August 23—Leaders of 500,000 organized railroad shopmen today voted nine to eight to strike the word "Japan" from the provisions of the peace treaty relating to the disposition of Germany's rights in the Shantung and insert the word "China."

Indications that Hines may already have an answer ready were seen in the fact that Hines yesterday conferred with the president for the second time this week. Hines has refused to say what the answer will be. Should Hines grant the wage increases asked by the shopmen, freight rate increases may follow, officials of the railroad administration believe.

Shopmen are determined to force granting of the demands, according to early returns received here in the national strike vote now being taken.

"About 98 per cent of the votes already counted are for standing pat on the original demands presented January 1 for an increase from 68 to 85 cents an hour," said Conlon today. "The demands also include a provision that the increase be made retroactive from January 1.

"Voting to enforce the original demands means the men want a strike if Hines refuses to accede."

Thirty days' notice must be given before a strike begins, according to Conlon.

Conlon said the men are voting on two propositions. The first is that proposed by President Wilson who suggested the whole matter be left to the decision of a board to be created by congress.

"Less than two per cent of the votes already counted favor this," said Conlon. "The second question on the ballot was whether the men wanted to stand pat on their original demands submitted January 1. Ninety-eight per cent of the votes already counted favor this."

NOTABLES WILL GREET PERSHING

President, Cabinet and High Diplomatic Officials to Welcome Commander-in-chief.

TO GET RANK OF FULL GENERAL

Parade Down Historic Pennsylvania Avenue to White House Also Planned.

By United Press Washington, August 23—General John J. Pershing when he returns to the United States will be accorded a spectacular reception if plans prepared today are carried out by congress.

The commander of the A. E. F. is scheduled to arrive in New York September 8 or 9. President Wilson may meet him there.

Chairman Kahn of the house military affairs committee has prepared a resolution asking a special joint session of congress September 18 to welcome Pershing and has asked the appointment of a special committee of five senators and seven representatives to make arrangements for the reception.

At that time, if Chairman Kahn's plans are carried out, the commander-in-chief of the expeditionary forces will be presented with a gold sword as an appreciation of his service.

The occasion will call forth a great gathering of official notables, as the president, the cabinet, high diplomatic officials of all countries and high military and naval men will be invited to participate.

Plans are also being considered to have the president at this time confer on General Pershing the rank of full general for life, as he has received.

PROPAGANDA BY PACKERS ALLEGED

Concerted Effort Being Made to Create Opposition to Kenyon Regulatory Measures.

MANY TELEGRAMS FORWARDED

Packers Alleged to Have Agents to Persuade Commercial Clubs to Register Objections.

By United Press Washington, August 23—What is regarded by officials as the most far-reaching propaganda to flood the country and congress since German activity was at its height, is now being gradually revealed to Washington, it was learned today.

It is propaganda directed against the Kenyon, Kendrick and seventeen other bills to regulate packers. According to documentary evidence the pressure that is being brought to bear on congress in opposition to the regulating bills takes the following form:

Sending telegrams to congressmen and senators signed with the name of residents of the legislators district without, it is alleged, the constituents' knowledge in many instances. Agents appearing before commercial clubs, farmers conventions and other organizations and persuading them to send telegrams to their national representatives proposing the proposed legislation. Many such telegrams are repudiated by independent action of the organization.

Following by a detailed system of assembling newspaper clippings, every article that may be derogatory to the packers and sending the magazine or newspaper editors a statement of the packers' position.

BANDIT HUNT IN NORTHERN MEXICO IS CONTINUED

Long Expedition Leads to Belief That Trail of Outlaws is Not Yet "Cold."

By United Press

Marfa, Tex., August 23—The bandit hunt in northern Mexico by American troops continued today without sign of a letup. Walking their horses and pack mules along steep trails, the United States cavalrymen scoured the country for members of the Mexican bands which held Lieutenant Petersen and Davis for ransom. It has proved the longest expedition into Mexico since the one in 1915. The continued presence of United States forces in Mexico is taken here to mean that the trail has not grown "cold" and that officers of the expedition have hope of trapping more bandits.

Simple But Effective.

Maj. W. H. Graves of the British army medical corps told at the meeting of the American Medical Association a story of how one physician cured a soldier who had been made dumb by shell shock. He took him into a room, turned on him suddenly with a threatening gesture, and shouted: "Speak!"

And the man was startled into speaking. Once having regained his speech he never lost it again. All he needed was to be convinced that he could talk, for there was no physical injury to his vocal cords or mouth.

Demands "Place in Sun."

Lebanon, a little California town, became a bit tired of the way the cities around her snatched days from the calendar and named them for products of which they were especially proud. Escondido had a grape day, Fresno flourished a raisin day, and presently San Bernardino announced an orange show. Not to be outdone, Lebanon proclaims a strawberry fair, with the additional note that she grows the finest strawberries in the world.

Mrs. Paul Pulliam, of Indianapolis, is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Lahman, North Broadway. Mrs. Lahman and daughter, Irene, will accompany her home Monday for a few weeks' visit.

EAST ADOPTS ENGLISH

Elementary Schools of Near East
Make Study Compulsory

Soon Will Displace French as the Language of Diplomacy and Business.

Island of Crete.—The English language promises soon to displace French as the language of business and diplomacy.

All through the Near East the Anglo-American influence has resulted in thousands of elementary schools instituting English as a compulsory language. Even in the Mediterranean Isle, the home of Premier Venizelos, instruction in the English language has been arranged for.

American scientific agriculturalists are now completing a survey of the soil possibilities of Crete in the same thorough fashion in which they surveyed the Greek mainland. Cretan soil is somewhat exhausted by centuries of cultivation without replacement of soil food, but with an abundant source of water supply in the mountains and available fertilizer it is believed much of it will respond to proper treatment.

American farming machinery and up-to-date methods are needed, and arrangements have been made to systematically educate the farmers of Greece and its largest island so that they can increase their yield of crops.

Maj. C. G. Hopkins of the Illinois agricultural department, and Lieut. C. J. Bouyoucos, a native Greek educated in America and a former instructor at Michigan Agricultural College, are in charge of the agricultural survey of Greece and Crete.

About five thousand refugees from Asia Minor are sheltered and fed on the Island of Crete. These are distributed in the large towns of Candia, Retimno and Canea, and in the small towns of the interior. American Red Cross representatives have visited these refugees as well as the civilian and military hospitals on the Island of Crete, in addition to investigating the conditions of the Greek soldiers returned from German prison camps and the townspeople of the island.

The greatest needs of the inhabitants of the island are an institution for the treatment of tuberculosis, medicines and medical supplies, blankets and staple foods.

MAY DOUBLE POTASH PRICES

German Syndicate Asks Permit to Meet Deficit and High Costs.

Weimar, Germany.—The potash syndicate has asked the government to grant permission to raise the price of potash 100 per cent owing to the increased cost of production. The syndicate says it has a deficit of 46,000,000 marks ($11,500,000) for the first three months of this year and declares it will be forced to shut down unless it can increase its selling price.

How Coast Guard Is Filled.

The United States coast guard officers are on the same footing in rank and pay as officers of the navy. Appointments to cadetships are made after competitive examinations conducted by boards of commissioned officers of the coast guard. Cadets are educated at the Coast Guard academy at New London, Conn., the course covering three years. Candidates for cadetships must be not less than eighteen nor more than twenty-four years old, citizens of the United States and unmarried. The authorized strength of the coast guard is 227 commissioned officers and 6,544 warrant officers, petty officers and enlisted men.

The Still Alarm

Joseph Arthur's
GREATEST MELODRAMAS OF ALL TIMES

For two days, commencing Monday "The Still Alarm" will be the attraction at the Majestic Theatre in this city. Pursuant to his progressive methods, Manager W. W. Eagleston is offering this story, which is a screen interpretation of Joseph Arthur's celebrated stage play by the same name.

The picture was produced in one of the largest studios in this country. It is a super-picture, in all that the term implies; enacted by a notable cast of players, including Thomas Santschi, Fritzi Brunette and Bessie Eytan. The story is of the melodramatic type, embracing all of the romance and dramatic situations of the play, but besides this it is a spectacular film of supreme importance owing to the gigantic fire scenes which surpass any in magnitude which have been seen on a motion picture screen.

MANY LUTHERANS ARE ATTENDING CONVENTION

Program of Unusual Interest Presented at The Indianapolis Session.

Indianapolis, August 23—At the session yesterday of the synodical convention of the Central District of the Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, in progress at the Emmaus Lutheran Church at Orange and Laurel streets, it was featured by the reading of a doctrinal paper by Prof. A. C. Stellhorn of Indianapolis. His official school visitor of the Synod. His subject was "Upon What Does the Successful Maintenance of Our Christian Day-schools Depend?"

The Christian day schools, he said, have been a very important factor in the rapid and healthy growth of the Lutheran Church in America. Of 4,400 congregations and preaching stations in the United States and Canada, 2,200 have established day schools, attended by 95,000 pupils. The object of these church schools has always been, he said, to instruct and train their pupils not only in the secular branches prescribed by the state but also in the rudiments of the Christian religion.

The general vice president of Synod, the Rev. J. W. Miller, continued his report on the educational institutions of the general body. In the afternoon the treasurer of the district, Paul E. Wolff of Fort Wayne, reported on the condition of the district's treasury. The sum of $170,000 was contributed by the congregations of the central district during the past fiscal year, which was devoted to the various church and benevolent purposes of the general body in which the district is taking part. About $15,000 were needed to carry on the mission work within the district. The district has sixteen mission stations in Ohio, nineteen in Indiana and one in Kentucky. Thirty-one missionaries are engaged in this work.

BEE BUZZING AROUND THESE OHIOANS

C. HARRIS & EWING

In Senators Harding and Pomerene, Ohio has two presidential possibilities. Senator Harding is considered by his many ardent supporters as the logical Republican candidate for the presidency. Friends and supporters of Pomerene have just started a nation-wide boom that they think will land the senator in the presidential chair for the Democrats. This snapshot was made at the United States capitol. Mr. Pomerene is at the left.

What Are the Chances of Being Saved?

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D. D.
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Are there few that be saved?—Matt. 13:23.

Some would say that the chances of being saved are not to be considered, for all are saved. Such a view is universalistic, out of which there will be a terrible awakening some day. Some say that the vast majority of the human race will be saved. These claim that all infants and all persons not morally responsible will be saved anyway, and that all persons who are not incorrigibly wicked and depraved will be saved also. Even some who are recognized as evangelical teachers say that the number of the saved will be very much greater than the number of the lost.

As it is only in the Scriptures that we have any information about the subject of salvation, it is the part of good judgment and common sense to inquire what the Bible teaches as to the number of the saved.

1. In the first place with some salvation depends in their view upon meeting certain moral obligations. If there is any moral obligation at all, it is enjoined in a book that says there is none that doeth good, no not one. All have sinned and come short of the glory of God. All have gone astray and every man has turned to his own way. If a man says he has no sin, he deceives himself and the truth is not in him.

2. The conditions of salvation as outlined in the Scriptures are so difficult of fulfilment that man does not love them. It being accepted that there is none that doeth good, there is none excepted from the conditions laid down in the Word of God, the leaving of all to follow Jesus, the renouncing of the world and the acceptance to meet these conditions, which imply also the recognition of Jesus Christ as the Son of God and the only Savior of man. If confessing Christians were polled and each examined as to his personal relationship to Jesus Christ, it would be found that a large number, possibly the majority, could not stand the test.

3. Let us note carefully the statements of Scripture as to the relative number of the saved. In the Old Testament the prophet asks, "Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the leopard his spots? Then may ye also do good that are accustomed to do evil." Jesus said on one occasion, "Many are called but few chosen."

On another occasion he said, "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." This prompted the question of his disciples, "Who then can be saved?"

In the Sermon on the Mount Jesus said, "Straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life and few there be that find it." In answer to the question, "Are there few that be saved?" Jesus replied, "Strive to enter in at the straight gate, for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter and shall not be able." There is an echo of this teaching in the words of Peter, "If the righteous scarcely can be saved, where shall the ungodly and sinner appear?" This was to say, if it is with the greatest difficulty that the righteous are saved, the chances of the ungodly are very few. We have also the teaching of the Lord as to some who will come before him at the great day of judgment and say, "We have eaten and drunk in thy presence and in thy name done many wonderful works," but he will say, "I never knew you."

Taking these conditions together, there is more than an intimation that a man falling short of the conditions should look upon his chances of being saved as comparatively small. If it is true, as Jesus said that he that believeth not on the Son of God shall not see life and that a man must believe on Jesus Christ in order to have everlasting life, it is likely that the vast majority of the people among us are not saved.

Jesus not only taught us that the gate is straight and the way narrow that leadeth to everlasting life, but he also taught that the way leading to death is wide and many as compared to the few on the narrow way are in it.

Drift into salvation is impossible. The will of man needs to be exercised in order to escape eternal perdition. To be saved a man must use his will definitely, immediately flee to Jesus Christ and accept him as Saviour.

All Things Are God's

As all men have all their powers and faculties from God so all men are obliged to act for God, with all their powers and faculties. As all things are God's so all things are to be used and regarded as the things of God.—William Law.

C. HARRIS & EWING

In Senators Harding and Pomerene, Ohio has two presidential possibilities. Senator Harding is considered by his many ardent supporters as the logical Republican candidate for the presidency. Friends and supporters of Pomerene have just started a nation-wide boom that they think will land the senator in the presidential chair for the Democrats. This snapshot was made at the United States capitol. Mr. Pomerene is at the left.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Jesus Answering the Lawyer

Luke 10:25-37

GOLDEN TEXT—As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith.—Gal. 6:10.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Gal. 6:2, 9; 10; James 2:14-16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Showing kindness to others.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Helping the needy.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Our responsibility for the welfare of others.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian ideal of brotherhood.

3:25). "By the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight" (Rom. 3:20). "By the law is the knowledge of sin" (Rom. 3:20).

II. Being a Neighbor (vv. 29-37).

1. The lawyer's question (v. 29). He evidently keenly felt the force of Christ's argument, for he sought to justify himself by asking, "Who is my neighbor?" This inquiry betrays his lack of that love which is the fulfillment of the law (Rom. 13:10). Love never inquires as to whom to love, but "Where is some one who needs my love?" Christ convicted him on his own grounds.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 30-37). He answered by a parable in which a certain man fell among thieves on his way to Jericho and was severely wounded. While in this helpless condition a priest passed by, not even coming near; also a Levite, who was interested enough to look on him, but not enough to help him. Finally a Samaritan came where the wounded man was and, moved by compassion for him, bound up his wounds and brought him on his own beast to the inn, where he was cared for at the Samaritan's expense.

In reply to Jesus' question the lawyer declared that the Samaritan was neighbor to the unfortunate man; and Jesus commanded him to go and do likewise (v. 37). By this Jesus showed him that the important question is not, "Who is my neighbor?" but "Whose neighbor am I?" Jesus came seeking those to whom he could be neighbor. Those who have his Spirit will be trying to be neighbors instead of hunting neighbors.

Those who love God supremely will, as they pass along the highways of life, minister to the broken and wounded souls in the spirit of a neighbor's love, regardless of nationality, religion, character or color. May we hear the voice of Jesus saying, "Go and do thou likewise."

CHAPTER XV.

George took off his dressing-gown and put on a collar and tie, his fingers shaking so that the tie was not his usual success; then he picked up his coat and waistcoat, and left the room while still in process of donning them, fastening the buttons as he ran down the front stairs to the door. It was not until he reached the middle of the street that he realized that he had forgotten his hat; and he paused for an irresolute moment then he decided that he needed no hat for the sort of call he intended to make, and went forward hurriedly. Mrs. Johnson was at home, the Irish girl who came to the door informed him, and he was left to await the lady, in a room like an elegant well—the Johnsons' "reception room."

Mrs. Johnson came in, breathing noticeably; and her round head, smoothly but economically decorated with the hair of an honest woman, seemed to be lingering far in the background of the Alpine bosom which took precedence of the rest of her everywhere; but when she was all in the room, it was to be seen that her breathing was the result of hospitable haste to greet the visitor, and her hand suggested that she had paused for only the briefest ablations. George accepted this cold, damp lump mechanically.

"Mr. Amberson—I mean Mr. Minafer!" she exclaimed. "I'm really delighted; I understood you asked for me. Mr. Johnson's out of the city, but Charlie's downtown and I'm looking for him at any minute, now, and he'll be so pleased that you—"

"I didn't want to see Charlie," George said. "I want—"

"Do sit down," the hospitable lady

"Do Sit Down," the Hospitable Lady Urged Him.

urged him, seating herself upon the sofa. "Do sit down."

"No, I thank you. I wish—"

"Surely you're not going to run away again, when you've just come? Do sit down, Mr. Minafer. I hope you're all well at your house and at the dear old Major's, too. He's looking—"

"Mrs. Johnson," George said, in a strained loud voice which arrested her attention immediately, so that she was abruptly silenced, leaving her surprised mouth open. "Mrs. Johnson, I have come to ask you a few questions which I would like you to answer, if you please."

She became grave at once. "Certainly, Mr. Minafer. Anything I can—"

He interrupted sternly, yet his voice shook in spite of its sternness. "You were talking with my Aunt Fan-persing, but cold all over, he burst into his Uncle George's room at the Major's without knocking. Amberson was dressing.

"Good gracious, George!" he exclaimed, "what's up?"

"I've just come from Mrs. Johnson's—across the street," George panted.

"You have your own tastes!" was Amberson's comment. "But curious as they are you ought to do something better with your hair, and button your waistcoat to the right buttons—even for Mrs. Johnson! What were you doing over there?"

"She told me to leave the house," George said desperately. "I went there because Aunt Fanny told me the whole town was talking about my mother and that man Morgan—that they say my mother is going to marry him and that proves she was too fond of him before my father died—she said this Mrs. Johnson was one that talked about it, and I went to her to ask who were the others."

"Mr. Minafer!"

"Isn't that the truth?"

"I don't feel called upon to answer, Mr. Minafer," she said with visible agitation. "I do not consider that you have any right—"

"My aunt told me you repeated this scandal to her."

"I don't think your aunt can have said that," Mrs. Johnson returned sharply. "I did not repeat a scandal of any kind to your aunt and I think you are mistaken in saying she told you I did. We may have discussed some matters that have been a topic of comment about town—"

"Yes!" George cried. "I think you may have! That's what I'm here about, and what I intend to—"

"Don't tell me what you intend, please," Mrs. Johnson interrupted crisply. "And I should prefer that you would not make your voice quite so loud in this house, which I happen to own. Your aunt may have told you—though I think it would have been very unwise in her if she did, and not very considerate of me—she may have told you that we discussed some topic as I have mentioned, and possibly that would have been true. If I talked it over with her, you may be sure I spoke in the most charitable spirit, and without sharing in other people's disposition to put an evil interpretation on what may be nothing more than unfortunate appearances and—"

"My God!" said George. "I can't stand this!"

"You have the option of dropping the subject," Mrs. Johnson suggested tartly, and she added: "Or of leaving the house."

"I'll do that soon enough, but first I mean to know—"

"I am perfectly willing to tell you anything you wish if you will remember to ask it quietly. I'll also take the liberty of reminding you that I had a perfect right to discuss the subject with your aunt. Other people—"

"Other people!" the unhappy George repeated viciously. "That's what I want to know about—these other people! You say you know of other people who talk about this."

"I presume they do."

"How many?"

"I want to know how many other people talk about it?"

"Dear, dear!" she protested. "How should I know that?"

"Haven't you heard anybody mention it?"

"I presume so."

"Well, how many have you heard?"

Mrs. Johnson was becoming more annoyed than apprehensive, and she showed it. "Really, this isn't a courtroom," she said. "And I'm not a defendant in a libel suit, either!"

The unfortunate young man lost what remained of his balance. "You may be!" he cried. "I intend to know just who's dared to say these things, if I have to force my way into every house in town, and I'm going to make them take every word of it back! I mean to know the name of every slanderer that's spoken of this matter to you and of every tattler you've passed it on to yourself. I mean to know—"

"You'll know something pretty quick!" she said, rising with difficulty; and her voice was thick with the sense of insult. "You'll know that you're out in the street. Please to leave my house!"

George stiffened sharply. Then he bowed, and strode out of the door.

Three minutes later, disheveled and and a ne would send the ripples as far as a truth would. You can be sure that for many years there's been more gossip in this place about the Ambersons than about any other family. I dare say it isn't so much so now as it used to be, because the town got too big long ago, but it's the truth that the more prominent you are the more gossip there is about you, and the more people would like to pull you down. Well, they can't do it as long as you refuse to know what gossip there is about you. But the minute you notice it it's got you! I'm not speaking of certain kinds of slander that sometimes people have got to take to the courts; I'm talking of the wretched buzzing the Mrs. Johnsons do—the thing you seem to have such a horror of—people 'talking'—the kind of thing that has assailed your mother. People who have repeated a slander either get ashamed or forget it, if they're let alone. People will forget almost any slander except one that's been fought."

"Is that all?" George asked.

"I suppose so," his uncle murmured sadly.

"Well, then, may I ask what you'd have done in my place?"

"I'm not sure, George. When I was your age I was like you in many ways, especially in not being very cool-headed, so I can't say. Youth can't be trusted for much, except asserting itself and fighting and making love."

"Indeed!" George snorted. "May I ask what you think I ought to have done?"

"Nothing."

"Nothing?" George echoed, mockingly.

"I suppose you think I mean to let my mother's good name—"

"Your mother's good name!" Amberson cut him off impatiently. "Nobody has a good name in a bad mouth. Nobody has a good name in a silly mouth, either. Well, your mother's name was in some silly mouths, and all you've done was to go and have a scene with the worst old woman gossip in the town—scene that's going to make her into a partisan against your mother, whereas she was a mere prattler before. Don't you suppose she'll be all over town with this tomorrow? And she'll see to it that everybody who's hinted anything about poor Isabel will know that you're on the warpath; and that will put them on the defensive and make them vicious. The story will grow as it spreads and—"

George folded his arms bitterly. "Will you kindly answer my question? What have I done that wasn't honorable and right? Do you think these riffraff can go about bandying my mother's name—"

"They can now," said Amberson. "I don't know if they could before, but they certainly can now!"

"What do you mean by that?"

His uncle sighed profoundly, picked up his tie, and, preoccupied with despondency, twisted the strip of white lawn till it became unbearable. Meanwhile, he tried to enlighten his nephew. "Gossip is never fatal, George," he said, "until it is denied. Gossip goes on about every human being alive and about all the dead that are alive enough to be remembered, and yet almost never does any harm until some defendant makes a controversy."

"See here," George said. "I didn't come to listen to any generalizing dose of philosophy! I ask you—"

"You asked me the what you've done, and I'm telling you," Amberson gave

George a long breath to strike his right fist into his left palm. "But do you suppose I'm going to tolerate such things?" he shouted. "What do you suppose I'll be doing?"

"You can do absolutely nothing," said Amberson. "Nothing of any use. The more you do the more harm you'll do."

"You'll see! I'm going to stop this thing if I have to force my way into every house on National avenue and Amberson boulevard!"

His uncle laughed rather sourly but made no other comment.

"Well, what do you propose to do?" George demanded. "Do you propose to sit there—"

"Yes."

"—and let this riffraff bandy my mother's good name back and forth among them? Is that what you propose to do?"

"It's all I can do," Amberson returned. "It's all any of us can do now: just sit still and hope that the thing may die down in time in spite of your stirring up that awful woman."

George drew a long breath, then advanced and stood close before his uncle. "Didn't you understand me when I told you that people are saying my mother means to marry this man?"

"Yes, I understand you."

"You say that my going over there has made matters worse," George went on. "How about it if such a—such an unspeakable marriage did take place? Do you think that would make people believe they'd been wrong in saying you know what they say?"

"No," said Amberson deliberately; "I don't believe it would. But it wouldn't hurt Isabel and Eugene, if they never heard of it; and if they did hear of it, then they could take their choice between placating gossip or living for their own happiness. If they have decided to marry—"

George almost staggered. Good heaven!" he gasped. "You speak of it calmly!"

Amberson looked up at him inquiringly. "Why shouldn't they marry if they want to?" he asked. "It's their own affair. I don't see anything precisely monstrous about two people getting married when they're both free and care about each other. What's the matter with their marrying?"

"It would be monstrous!" George shouted. "Monstrous even if this horrible thing hadn't happened, but now in the face of this—oh, that you can sit there and even speak of it! Your own sister! Oh—" He became incoherent, swinging away from Amberson and making for the door, wildly gesturing.

"For heaven's sake don't be so theatrical!" said his uncle, and then, seeing that George was leaving the room: "Come back here. You mustn't speak to your mother of this!"

"Don't 'tend to," George said indistinctly, and he plunged into the big, dimly lit hall. He went home and got a hat and overcoat without seeing either his mother or Fanny. Then he left word that he would be out for dinner and hurried away from the house.

He walked the dark streets of Amberson addition for an hour, then went downtown and got coffee at a restaurant. After that he walked through the lighted parts of the town until ten o'clock, when he turned north and came back to the purloins of the Addition. He walked fiercely, though his feet ached, but by and by he turned homeward, and, when he reached the Major's, went in and sat upon the steps of the huge stone veranda in front—an obscure figure in that lonely and repellent place. All lights were out at the Major's, and finally, after twelve, he saw his mother's window darken at home.

He waited half an hour longer, then crossed the front yards of the new houses and let himself noiselessly in the front door. The light in the hall had been left burning, and another in his own room, as he discovered when he got there. He locked the door quickly and without noise, but his fingers were still upon the key when there was a quick footfall in the hall outside.

"George, dear?"

He went to the other end of the room before replying.

"Yes?"

"I'd been wondering where you were, dear."

"Had you?"

There was a pause; then she said timidly: "Wherever it was, I hope you had a pleasant evening."

After a silence, "Thank you," he said without expression.

Another silence followed before she spoke again.

"You wouldn't care to be kissed good night, I suppose?" And with a little flurry of placative laughter she added: "At your age of course!"

"I'm going to bed now," he said. "Good night."

Another silence seemed blander than those which had preceded it, and finally her voice came—it was blank, too.

"Good night."

After he was in bed his thoughts became more tumultuous than ever; while among all the inchoate and fragmentary sketches of this dreadful day, now rising before him the clearest was of his uncle collapsed in a big chair with a white tie dangling from his hand; and one conviction, following upon that picture, became definite in George's mind: that his Uncle George Amberson was a hopeless dreamer, from whom no help need be expected, an amiable imbecile lacking in normal impulses, and wholly useless in a struggle which required honor to be defended by a man of action.

Then would return a vision of Mrs. Johnson's furious round head, set behind her great bosom like the sun far sunk on the horizon of a mountain plateau and her crackling, asthmatic voice. . . . "Without sharing in other people's disposition to put an evil interpretation on what may be nothing more than unfortunate appearance" . . . "Other people may be less considerate in not confining their discussion of it, as I have, to charitable views." . . . And then George would get up again—and again—and pace the floor in his bare feet.

That was what the tormented young man was doing when daylight came gauntly in at his window—pacing the floor, rubbing his head in his hands, and muttering:

"It can't be true: this can't be happening to me!"
